For the first time at an EAHP Congress, the 18th Congress of the EAHP in Paris will see a dedicated session for pharmacy students with the title, “Student to Hospital Pharmacist – Breaking down the barriers [1]” taking place on Wednesday 13th March 2013, 11:15am to 1:00pm in Room 251 of the Palais des Congres Conference centre.

The main aim of this session is to discuss the career pathway that students can take across Europe to become hospital pharmacists.

This session has been designed by David Preece, current EPSA Intern in the EAHP offices in Brussels.

“As a practicing hospital pharmacist and EPSA Secretary General I understand both the passion to become a hospital pharmacist but also the perceived barriers to do so. I have a passion for hospital pharmacy and would like to encourage pharmacy students to work in this sector. I hope that this session can be a useful starting point in their career. “

Speakers that have agreed to be part of this session have extensive experience in France, USA, Austria and the UK.

They all are interested in sharing their knowledge to the students and pharmacists of tomorrow.

Members of the French Association representing Hospital Pharmacy residents will also be present describing how they support the activities of hospital pharmacists in France. They will look forward to changes ahead in 2013 in France and will hopefully inform, educate and inspire!

More details about this session can be found here [1].
