EAHP, in collaboration with EuroPharm Forum has published a booklet summarising the results of a collaborative survey which investigates the status of communication between hospital and community pharmacists in Europe.

The findings highlight the level of importance that pharmacists from both sectors place on inter-sector communication, whilst simultaneously revealing there is still much more to do make such communication as a standard reality.

The survey results also shine light on some of the perceived barriers to communication that should be the focus of improvement activity.

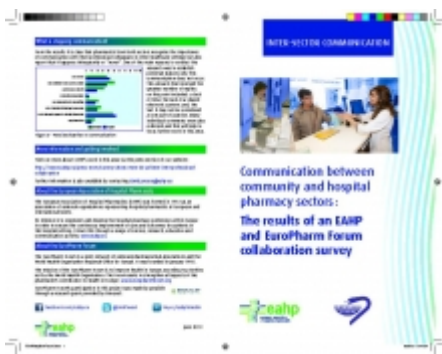

The June 2013 booklet summarising the results of the EAHP-EuroPharm Forum project on inter-sector communication is available to download for free here ^[1].
