EAHP would like to remind hospital pharmacists across Europe that just days remain to save money on registration for the 20th Congress of the EAHP in Hamburg (25-27th March 2015).

EAHP Chief Operating Officer Jennie de Greef said:

"With the early bird registration fee for the Hamburg Congress closing at midnight on Sunday 30th November, hospital pharmacists are encouraged to reserve their place without any further delay!"

Our 2015 Congress promises to be another packed week of targeted educational sessions, illuminating keynote speeches, best-practice sharing and unparalleled international professional networking opportunities.

The theme of patient safety is at the heart of what every hospital pharmacist does -from when they arrive to work to when they leave - and often beyond this as well. We trust the organised agenda of workshops and seminars covering this topic will provide participants with fresh energy and ideas in fulfilling their daily professional mission.

I'm particularly pleased to see the further development in international registrations this year as well, demonstrating the ever-growing recognition of the EAHP Congress as the premier hospital pharmacy educational event in Europe.

I appeal to all hospital pharmacists in Europe to consider joining us in Hamburg to gain important new insights about their practice and to discover some further inspirations for developments in their own hospital."
