Nera Beciroski, Finland

"I benefited both socially and educationally from congress as I met other like-minded students to share ideas and hopes with. I was also able to enjoy sessions composed by healthcare professionals that are genuinely excited about the field of hospital pharmacy, and that excitement is contagious.
I still draw from the experience in my everyday studies, and I will definitely be returning next year."

Elena Popa, Romania

"Only two days spent in the EAHP congress enriched me with useful knowledge and amazing experiences that make me want to also participate in the next EAHP event.
The educational programme was extremely well structured and each parallel session had at least one subject that caught my attention. I could expand my knowledge in the pharmaceutical field and I had the opportunity to network and get in touch with students and professionals from all over the world, which made my attendance of EAHP congress more than pleasant and beneficial"

Larry Stats, UK

"Going to EAHP Annual Congress in Hamburg 2015 as a student really opened my eyes to what hospital pharmacy has to offer for the future.

There were many companies in attendance showcasing the latest in hospital pharmacy technology as well as presentations from some of the leaders of the profession.

All in all, it was a very enlightening experience what I would encourage any other pharmacy student to try!"

Viktoria Jungreithmayr, Austria

"Participating in the 21st EAHP congress was definitely advantageous to build up on both my knowledge on patient-focused healthcare delivery and my personal connections with other pharmacy students from around Europe. The high professionalism of the event, combined with a low fee for students and a special programmed designed for undergraduates makes this event something you definitely should not miss!"

Milan Berstling, Slovakia

"I specially liked [the] presentations focused on patients' dosage and [the] absolutely great new technologies [presented] during [the] exhibition. This helped me grow (...) and [focus] more on patient's individuality."

Marine Barral, France

"I really enjoyed my time at the EAHP Congress in Hamburg. For me, the main benefit was sharing ideas and experiences with people from other countries and discovering their hospital practices.

Moreover, EAHP allows us, students, to meet and spend (a) very pleasant time together."

Chiara Lamesta, Italy

"While I was doing research for my doctorate in "Hospital Pharmacy" at University of Bari, Italy, I became passionate in the area of drug management that could identify any potential hazard for the patient, reducing the clinical risks associated to the drug.

The main benefits of attending the EAHP congress 2016 have been to exchange international knowledge, as well as the ability to be able to compare the different implemented approaches between Italy and another countries when managing pharmaceutical care systems.

Therefore, I strongly believe this opportunity has been vital for my understanding and knowlegde on how to be able to improve the "Pharmaceutical Care", especially as it is indispensable within a multidisciplinary team."
