EAHP Survey – results published in EJHP

The results of the 2016 Statement survey have been published in the latest issue of the European Journal of Hospital Pharmacy (EJHP). The 2016 European Association of Hospital Pharmacists (EAHP) Statements survey builds on previous surveys and represents the final step in the first cycle of the revised format of the EAHP annual survey. It covers sections 1 (Introductory statements and governance), 3 (Production and compounding) and 4 (Clinical pharmacy service) of the European Statements.

Like the previous surveys, the 2016 EAHP Statements survey addresses three sections focusing on general hospital pharmacy data, current activities of pharmacists and the readiness and ability of the hospital to implement the statements. 750 responses from EAHPs 35 member countries were collected. The majority of the participating hospital pharmacies had >10 pharmacists, with almost half serving over 500 beds. Questions addressing production and compounding in Section 3 revealed that responders are having less difficulty implementing these statements compared the ones of Section 4. Mixed reactions were provided in relation to the introductory statements and governance questions of Section 1.

Data collected via the survey will deepen EAHPs knowledge of the level of implementation of sections 1, 3 and 4 of the Statements. In addition, it helps to identify the main barriers to, and drivers of, implementation. Clinical pharmacy services and participation in multidisciplinary teams are the most challenging Statements for implementation in hospital pharmacies, while the most important barrier to implementation is insufficient capacity and different priorities of hospital and health system managers.

FIP global survey – pharmacy at a glance

The World Congress of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences saw the launch of "Pharmacy at a glance: 2015–2017" – a global survey of the International Pharmaceutical Federation (FIP). It provides readers with information on the state of the pharmacy profession at global level for both community and hospital pharmacy services. Data on the distribution of pharmacists in different sectors and access to pharmacies, models of generic medicines dispensing/substitution and the availability of medicines online is summarised in eight infographics out of which two are specifically dedicated to hospital pharmacies.

Regarding hospital pharmacies, the study investigated the scope of practice by surveying the extend of implementation of a set of activities and services. These were clustered in four groups addressing the influence on procurement and prescribing, the preparation and delivery of medicines, monitoring of medicines use as well as other activities and services. It was not only investigated if these service are available but also if they can be considered as part of mainstream hospital pharmacy practice.

The most common services reported were the provision of support to emergency departments (by 69 out of 72 respondents), reporting of adverse reactions to medicines (by 68 out of 72 respondents) and the participation in pharmacy and therapeutic committees (by 68 out of 72 respondents). The responsible use of medicines is adhered to through the implementation of antibiotic stewardship initiatives as well as infection control and prevention strategies. Recently introduced technical innovations – such as clinical pharmacogenomic testing – are services that are not yet available within the majority of the participating hospital pharmacies.
