The most frequently used antibiotics were not associated with HAIs. However, the decrease in use of glycopeptides and fluoroquinolones was associated with higher ID of CDIs. Simply decreasing the consumption of antibiotics with high risk for HAIs may not be enough.